Feeling Finders

Contact lenses that when you put them in, you see others how they see themselves. Many of the great conflicts in this world are caused by how we view things and our opinions so if we could all understand each other, then we would all get along. For example, if someone is getting bullied and the bully puts in these contacts, then they will be able to see how the victim sees him/herself and then the bully will understand what they think and how they see things. It will solve loads of problems as everyone will get each other. They will be small and round and when you put them in you can select a subject and they will give you a diagram and labels of how that person feels or views things (himself, issues, objects and feelings). You can then change subject and view their opinions and other feelings. As I mentioned, you will also be able to view how they see themselves like if they're insecure or confident, if they think they are ugly or pretty. It would be sold at EVERY shop as I think everyone could use one and they would be reasonably cheap so everyone could afford one. Something like £1.99. This would be the greatest invention ever as people could finally make peace with not only others but themselves as well. But, in every 10, there is at least 1 person who feels too insecure to share their feelings so if that is the case, all they need to do is to purchase a pair of these contacts and go onto settings (bottom left) and adjust their sharing abilities. Although it does come with a con. If you don't want to share your feelings, you will not be able to see others peoples as it wouldn't be fair. When that person comes at ease with their feelings and feels comfortable to share them, they will then be able to view others thoughts. This invention would be a great addition as it would help everyone feel as ease with themselves and would be just awesome.
