

Monday 8th February 2021

To understand features of writing –
scientific/fantasy narrative.

Creating Nouns Using -ship Suffix

Practise your weekly spelling words using cursive handwriting.

membership

ownership partnership dictatorship championship

craftsmanship fellowship

apprenticeship

citizenship

sponsorship

Starter: handwriting practise

Ruin

Watch the clip

- While you watch the clip take notes on the following:
 - Describe the setting
 - How does the character behave

How to annotate the short text – identify writing features (as many as you can) and explain why they have been used.

Use of fronted adverbial – this would help clarify events for the reader and give more information about time, place or manner.

Devoid of human activity, the city had become a slave to nature. Concrete, which once stood strong, was splintered by vegetation. In one dilapidated building, there was a lone man on mission. From the highest floor, he pushed a heavy, metal safe towards the window. With a final shove, it went plummeting towards the ground. What was in this safe that meant so much to him? Whatever it was, he was determined to get access to it. It hit the ground with mighty force; gravity had done its work.

Arriving at the twisted heap of metal on the ground, the man rummaged through the contents that were now sprawled over the floor. A tablet flickered to life. It was exactly what he was looking for.

Twisted heap – this would create the impression of how forcefully the safe hit the ground. The reader would also understand that without throwing it from a great height, the man would not have been able to get to its contents.

Your turn:

Devoid of human activity, the city had become a slave to nature. Concrete, which once stood strong, was splintered by vegetation. In one dilapidated building, there was a lone man on mission. From the highest floor, he pushed a heavy, metal safe towards the window. With a final shove, it went plummeting towards the ground. What was in this safe that meant so much to him? Whatever it was, he was determined to get access to it. It hit the ground with mighty force; gravity had done its work.

Arriving at the twisted heap of metal on the ground, the man rummaged through the contents that were now sprawled over the floor. A tablet flickered to life. It was exactly what he was looking for.

EXTENSION TASK (ALL GROUPS):
If you come across a word you don't know, write a clear definition of this word. This word may be useful later!

ADDITIONAL 3* EXTENSION:
Show me 3 synonyms for the following words:

1. devoid
2. dilapidated
3. plummeting
4. rummaged